SUPREME COURT.—LIEUTENANT-COLONEL JONES, H. M. 57th.
(From the Madras Examiner, Nov. 7.)

OUR Law Reports show that Col. Jones has been sued in the Supreme Court, by a British subject, in his corps, for the value of palankees taken from the Colonel had destroyed. We heard long ago, that at Trichinopoly the man had applied to the reviewing General, Major General Showers, for the value of his Palankees, and that he had strongly urged Colonel Jones to pay it. We heard also that Sir Robert had subsequently urged the same advice upon the General, who, more so, turned a deaf ear to both. We heard also, that when private Barrett commenced his action, Colonel Jones was very wrath, and was very urgent to know if he could not punish Barrett for some such thing, and that there was actually a reference made to the Judge Advocate General, who of course decided that he could do no such thing.

By paying money into Court, Colonel Jones has now confessed, on the record of the Supreme Court, that he did wrongfully destroy the poor man's palankees, and having confessed the injury we think that as an officer and a gentleman he has but to say to the man, that is to repair it. The sum he has paid is we hear Forty Rupees; now every one knows that a tolerably good secondhand palankees will always fetch from Rs. 70 to Rs. 80; so that though he admits the wrongful destruction of the palankees, he only tenders the injured party half-price for it.

It is not so much so much as to settle (it being a matter of course, in judgment, opinion) and if the poor man now goes on with his action, and cannot clearly prove his palankees to have been worth more than forty rupees, he will it seems be saddled with the costs on both sides.

This risk, and the uncertainty of proof as to the exact value, may perhaps induce the poor man to discontinue his action, and take Colonel Jones off his hands; so put up with half-price for his palankees; but though, if he does so, Colonel Jones may thereby save some Rs. 30 or Rs. 40, we would not for double the sum stand the risk of the credit of such a saving.

If on the other hand the man now prove that his palankees were worth more than forty rupees, and goes on with his action, the poor man having confessed the wrongful destruction of his palankees, he will inquire into it the value, and if that be easily provable, as we should think it would be, we opine the gallant Colonel will retire (to use an orientalism) that he has run much dirt, and got himself, as the Yankees would say, into a pretty considerable fix.

THE NEW REPUBLIC.
(From the Englishman.)

JUDGING by the contents of the London Mail, which has just appeared, and which already enables us to determine on the "ex pede" rule, what degree of interest the mass of papers which soon follow it will have, we may say that the present overland is far more interesting than several of its immediate precursors. It has not, indeed, any English or general European interest, any political importance; but there is much in it, which commands the attentive perusal of the Anglo-Indian reader, in the various comments on the Afghan war; while the unhappy rioting in the manufacturing and mining districts, and the royal visit to Scotland, will in their respective ways, afford a good deal of local and partially exciting and agreeable reading. Though we have not yet had time to determine where our own comments should begin, and when, and think it as well, in respect to some of the points which are likely to call them forth, to wait till we have the fuller information which our regular bulletin will presently supply, yet we cannot but say that the Mail has done a good officers of the Indian army a valuable job, which they are expected to take India from England, and convert it into a military republic! The following is from a French paper, of course; and of course it refers to Bombay as the fountain of its extremely accurate information—just as the Mail does of the state of the day, when it told the universe of the Mail, and dignity of the Bombay Times. Surely our worthy "Duck" contemporary would not have been furnishing the beggared Frenchman with the news upon which the following paragraph is based:—

"The Courrier Français, on the authority of a "traveller" just arrived from Bombay, has just received news that in the British army in India a secret association, whose object is to render that country independent of England. This association, which is very numerous, is chiefly composed of captains and lieutenants, with a few superior officers and one or two Generals. A few officers of the rank of Major and captains of the Company likewise belong to it. According to the plan of the enterprise, the entire of British India is to form itself into an aristocratic military republic, the president of which to be elected for four years, and chosen from among the General Officers. He is to assume the title of Marshal-Prince, and to be assisted by a Council-General, appointed by the Marshal-President, to act as secretaries of state in each country. There are to be two military Chambers, the one consisting of generals, and the other of officers. The territory is to be divided into shires or counties of 1,000,000 inhabitants each (and no more) and each shire to be governed by a council, nominated by the Marshal-President. The limits of the republic are to be the Ocean, Tartary, Persia, and China. The possessions of the French, Portuguese, and Daces, in Hindostan, are to form part of the republic!"

After all, we incline to accept the Bombay Times of the foregoing ideas of the revolutionary legislation; for in reality (on a second perusal) so extremely French that we more than half incline to suspect that the entire manufacture has been done in Paris; and as any consummation of the sort would give infinite gratification to our Gallic friends, and be sure to induce them to make a valuable contribution of their last lot) they seem to have considered that to send out the plan, under the character of a piece of Indian intelligence, would be a sufficient and sure method of getting it to work. Pour devil!—they estimate British officers at a low rate indeed when they thus pronounce them to be "the most ignorant and stupid of mortals." But how excellent are the details! The "Marshal-President," how like a French monarchist! and the "Council of Inspectors General," as if one of those royal and sanative functionaries which royed regiments, will soon appear; it has been sent from the Head-Quarters for the approval of Government. The following are the principles by which promotions are to be regulated; officers belonging to the unfortunate corps are to be given the preference for as to give them the same position in their regiments as the most lucky of their contemporaries in the ordinary course of promotion. Thus the 62nd regiment N. I. which I believed to be the most lucky of our corps for the junior staff, will suppose, that the 62nd regiment will be given the preference for the regiments for them. I need not point out to you the general objections to this plan, at the same time, I am not aware of any that could be made to give satisfaction to all parties." Colonel Shelton comes in here to-day or to-morrow. A tent has been pitched for him near head-quarters. Can he, being the first guest, be received by the C. C.? So the first guest is to be the general. Kurnial; and Umbhal is to be the favoured spot. I cannot say much about this latter place, having only seen it for a few hours on my way up dwark here; but this I know, that one of the greatest essentials to health was wanting, viz., good drinking water; the ground also appeared very low, and the soil very bad country. Many better places, in my opinion, might be selected, at no greater distance from the frontier. I ought to have mentioned above, that the remainder of the vacancies in the unfortunate Calcutta corps, would be given to those unlucky in promotion in the 62nd regiment, to their advantage. P. S.—Brigadier Shelton is to test his powers, not in Commander-in-chief's lines, but in the Buffs.

MILITARY OPERATIONS IN BUNDELKUND.—Our accounts from the Saugor district are to the 9th instant, on which day an express was received in camp at Allahpore from General Tombs, commanding the Saugor district, that Colonel Blackall's detachment to return to Saugor by forced marches, so as to arrive there on the 14th. Colonel Wastons's detachment to push on to Dumnow, and Colonel Ely to protect the valley of the Narbudda. Mr. Charles Fraser, the commissioner, had received intelligence that upwards of 250 horsemen were on their march in the vicinity of Banda, that Major Sleeman is surrounded in every direction, and has summoned troops from all quarters. The 31st B. N. I., mustering a thousand bayonets, are in full march for that quarter from Saugor; and the 8th cavalry from Cawpore, all the troops, in short, that could be spared, are being sent, and have received orders to hasten on with all practicable speed, the several field detachments were accordingly on the move immediately. The Rajah of Herapora, and many of his adherents, who escaped our troops in the fastnesses of the Nerbudda jungles, are supposed to have fled for shelter to the Nagpore Hills, but all the Ghauts in that direction are now guarded by the Contingent, and those on the opposite side are narrowly watched by Rohillas. These men have been lately entertained as police in great numbers, and are found to be a most efficient body in that capacity. The very name of Pelachette, which has been given by the people of the frontier, strikes dread into the hearts of the natives, and should the fugitives fall into the hands of these Rohillas, their chance of escape will be very small, as a reward of two thousand rupias has been proclaimed for the Goand, leuder, Davi Sing, and smaller sums in proportion to the consequence of the inferior chieftains.—Madras United Service Gazette, November 25.

BULL BAITING.

CONVICTION OF TWELVE PERSONS FOR AIDING AND ASSISTING AT A BULL BAITING.

LAVENHAM.—On Saturday last, William Mattham, landlord of the Black Lion, Lavenham; Noah Smith, horse-dealer, Sudbury; John Chinnery, saddler, Hadleigh; Isaac Ransom, gardener, Sudbury; James Carter, Martin Stearn, and William Gurling, butchers, Lavenham; Abraham Hughes, Isaac Scarle, Frederick Stork, William Snell, and William Duple, all of Lavenham, were brought before Mr. Johnson, to answer the complaint of Mr. Henry Thomas, secretary of the Royal Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, which charged them with having, on the fifth of November instant, at the parish of Lavenham, in the county of Suffolk, kept and used a certain ground called the "Bull Ring," for the purpose of bull-baiting, and with having aided and assisted at the baiting of a certain bull then and there, being contrary to the provisions of the statute in that case made and provided (act 5 and 6 Will. IV., chap. 59, sec. 3.)

Mr. Walsh appeared for the defendants, Mattham and Must.

Mr. Thomas conducted the case for the prosecution, and called

John Stork, who stated, that in consequence of instructions from Mr. Thomas, he went to Washmere-green about twelve o'clock on Saturday, the 5th of November. A great many persons were assembled, and between three and four o'clock a bull was brought to the green from the direction of Lavenham village; it was driven by Carter, Hughes, Scarle, and Stork, and many other men, who were severely injured. Several of the persons present fixed a rope round its horns, and led it to a stake fixed on the green; the rope was taken from the horns, and fastened to a collar which was on the bull's neck; the animal was then tied to the stake, and driven the length of the rope, when, by voice and other means, the irritated it, and made it "wild." Carter was particularly active in making the preliminary arrangements and in setting the dogs on the bull; he also collected money from the by-standers. Stearn had a dog which he set on the bull, which it seized upon and injured severely. Gurling, Chinnery, and Ransom, had dogs, which they set on the bull. Mattham was present, on horseback, and upon the bull being stated, and before it was taken away, the parties engaged went and spoke to him, and immediately afterwards they tied and unloosed the rope, and made the animal by Stearn belonged to Mattham, who appeared to witness to direct the proceedings. All the other defendants were particularly active in the cruel sport. The bull was baited about an hour, and was torn about the nose and face, and killed and injured. Several of the dogs were also injured.

Many persons were present, and during the baiting the greatest uproar prevailed, and language of the most filthy and disgusting description was indulged in.

Mr. Thomas then called John Ditton, who corroborated Smith's evidence, and the defendants having been severally heard in their defence.

The Magistrate feelingly addressed them, pointing out the misery which must inevitably result to them from an indulgence in such cruel and disgraceful practices. It
